Roots and Shoots: A Preface

By Dorothy Bell

To some extent, the events and timelines of the American Family Tree of Theosophy disguise the true nature of its evolutionary life—the cycles and patterns of growth, decline, and rebirth and within them, the struggles to bring the original purpose of the Theosophical Society into fruition.

New seasons have seen some branches of the Family Tree thicken and extend offshoots, as others wither and die. In pushing up from underground and finding new garden beds, new runners from the main roots have found their own place in the sun—while appearing separate. On the original tree, storms have damaged branches sometimes splitting them asunder. And in the fullness of cycles, leaves have fallen and others have grown, taking their place on twigs and other offshoots, pushing out to find the light, and responding to the same living, vibrating impulse for life expression and expansion.

The impulse of the Heart that sowed its seed in 1875 and grew the outer vehicle—The Theosophical Society—to carry the Light of Wisdom into the world, is still with us today in the hearts of many who are responding anew to its original call, but who find themselves under different labels, in different boxes, and in different territories.

Over the years, lines of demarcation have been drawn in the sand, fences have been built, territories established and guarded. In time, lines drawn in sand lose their definition, but not so those lines in the mind that are caught in memory, in history. In the past, perceptions of lost ideals, wrong directions, and diluted teachings bred disharmony, division, and separation—and new patterns of birth, growth and renewal, or decline and decay, evolved.

But the original impulse that produced the seed and the tree, the branches and offshoots, the underground runners with their place in the sun, is still within, seeking expression and fulfillment. There is no need to change any boundaries, annex other territories, or dissolve any compartments, save in the prison of the mind. And a mind that is crippled by memory—by separation and fear—can never be free. We can find our own place in the sun by going beyond the bondage of the past and serving that impulse wherever we be. That is our territory; that is our center; that is our Theosophical family.

The American Family Tree of Theosophy

The aim has been to produce something accessible, simple and useful. It is an initiative of the President, Betty Bland, in response to those members at the Joy Mills Krotona Invitational 2009 who expressed interest in finding out more about the bigger picture of the Theosophical movement in America—beyond our own organization—The Theosophical Society in America [Adyar]. The following diagrams, while overlapping and becoming more complex, are a work in progress, as they attempt to describe, in a restricted mode of presentation and from a range of sources, some of the significant events of the past that have shaped the American Family Tree of Theosophy. They provide a springboard for browsers to continue the exploration for themselves.

In seeking information, decisions had to be made about what to include or exclude, and there will always be debate about things that should have been included. For example, the diagrams do not give details about:

- The major developments in the history of the present Theosophical Society of America (TSA) [Adyar] which is headquartered in Wheaton, Illinois [see Joy Mills, below, for a comprehensive account of the first 100 years]
- The early days when Canadian Lodges were managed by the American Board of Control and Section
- The independent Lodges that exist in the United States today, such as in Boston
- Those many groups that have formed around Theosophists or others who have been deeply influenced by Theosophy and by both Eastern and Western esoteric literature
- The valuable journals and magazines that many groups have produced

Resources

As in any journey of discovery and exploration, there were signposts to follow. The following reference books provided both information and food for thought:

Mills, Joy. 100 Years of Theosophy: A History of the Theosophical Society in America. Wheaton, Ill.: Theosophical Publishing House, 1987.

Spinks, F. P. Theosophists Reunite!. Boston: The Christopher Publishing House, 1958.

And where would an amateur sleuth be without the Google tool? The following Web sites, some more comprehensive than others, are fundamental and lead into the labyrinth of linkages of organizations, personalities, and histories that weave the stories of the past that are also our stories and our dreams. As a wise old woman, a teacher, once said, "Every story is an aspect of the truth... and everyone who ever was, is, or will be, is an aspect of you—as you are an aspect of them."

The Temple of the People
The Theosophical Society [Adyar]
The Theosophical Society [Pasadena]
The Theosophical Society [Pasadena]
The Theosophical Society [Pt. Loma-The Hague]
The Theosophical Society in America
The United Lodge of Theosophists
The Word Foundation

Homepage http://www.templeofthepeople.org/
Homepage http://www.ts-adyar.org/
Homepage http://www.theosociety.org/
Homepage http://www.blavatskyhouse.org/
Homepage http://www.ult.org/
Homepage http://www.ult.org/
Homepage http://www.thewordfoundation.org/

An Introductory Glance

THE AMERICAN FAMILY TREE OF THEOSOPHY

With the Parent Organization, Branches, & Offshoots Overview of leaders and some main events

International National

	H. S. Olcott: Founding President				I
	H. P. Blavatsky: Corresp.Secreta	ıry
1888	EST	1884	Board of Cont	rol m	anages American	Branches- Doubleday Pres.
1890	Inner Group	1886	American Sec	tion o	f The Theosophic	al Society- Judge Gen. Sec
1891	Blavatsky dies Besant/Judge joi	nt
	Outer Heads-EST;	1895	Fullerton	1895	The Theosophic	eal Society in America sece
	Outer Heads-EST,	1075	runciton	10/5		l life President, dies 1896
				1898		salBro'hood&Theos. Soci
				1090	mayaa Dt. Lan	na >> offshoots - see next pa
1006	I II			1004
	Leadbeater resigns/returns '07	400=		1904	Crosbie leave	es [former student of Judge]
1907	A. Besant	1907	Van Hook
				1909		rms the ULT
1909	Krishnamurti discovered/educate	d				e of Theosophists
1909	G. R. S.Mead leaves >Quest Soci	ety		The Theosophy Publishing Co.
911	Order of the Star in the East est.	1912	Warrington		International Headquarters
1912	Krishnamurti heads Order of the Star		HQ Krotona/H'wood		Los Angeles, California
1912	Rudolf Steiner leaves. Forms Ant	hropo-			8	, and the second
	sophical Society/Waldorf School-
	sopinear Society, waited a School		Rogers
1022	B. P. Wadia resigns	1)20			Wedi	e ioing III T 1022
			HQ Chicago		vv aui	a joins ULT -1922
1923		1004	Ed Ho . O' !
	Arcane School; Lucis Trust	1924	ES-HQ to Ojai
1928		1926	HQ to Wheaton
1929	,			1929	de Purucker
	establishes institutes/schools	1931	Cook
1933	G. Arundale	1934	Section renamed
			TSA
		1945	Perkins	1945	Conger
1946	C. Jinarajadasa
	· ·
1953	Sri Ram			1951	Long Hartle	y splits off
		1960	Smith		1958
		1965	Mills		1500
		1705	TVIIIIS	1971	Knoche
1973	J. Coats			17/1	Knoche
	J. Coats	1074	XX7-1* -
		1974	Wylie
		1975	Kunz		400
1980	R. Burnier				1985	Vermeulen
		1987	Abbenhouse
						1
		1993	TS in Boston [in	d]		1
		1993	Algeo
						1
		2002	Bland
			T	2006	Grubb
4	7	,	▼		1	,

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY PT. LOMA - COVINA - PASADENA BRANCH

Roots - and some offshoots

Background

