The Jefferson Bible [sound recording] / Thomas Jefferson. New York, NY : Palisades Press, p1995. 2 sound cassettes (150 min.) (Great Books in Audio) Read by Sam Gray.

Jefferson believed fervently in the moral teachings of Jesus in spite of the fact that he was labeled an atheist when he ran for the presidency. So he cut out passages from the Gospels that he felt were the true words of Jesus. Jefferson created a philosophy that was to be as close to Jesus' own philosophy as humanly possible.

The Lives of Camphill : an anthology of the pioneers / compiled and edited by Johannes M. Surkamp. Edinburgh : Floris, 2007. 367 p.

The Camphill Movement had its beginnings in 1939, with a small group of young Austrian refugees led by Karl Konig. This book is a definitive reference to over one hundred of the people who subsequently joined the movement between the 1940s and early 1970s. They helped to make Camphill the large and influential network it is today, working in a unique way with children and adults with special needs. Gathered together here are 129 short biographies and photographs spanning thirty years. Each tells a fascinating individual story, and together they form a remarkable whole, documenting the history of Camphill in the most appropriate way: through its people.

The Logos Doctrine [sound recording] / Emily Sellon. Wheaton, IL : Theosophical Society in America, 2010, c1988. 2 sound discs (129 min)

NEW TITLES IN THE OLCOTT LIBRARY - OCTOBER 2010

The Logos doctrine is central to the metaphysics of theosophical teachings, says Emily Sellon. For example, it is found throughout H.P. Blavatsky's work, The Secret Doctrine. The term Logos comes to us from the ancient Greek philosophers, and means reason or its manifestation. The speaker explains the significance of the word and how it shapes Theosophical metaphysics.

Lost [videorecording] : reflections on a poem of counsel / Maria Parisen. Wheaton, IL : Theosophical Society in America, c2010. 1 videodisc (49 min)

"Lost" is a window into Native American wisdom, translated by the poet David Wagoner. Perhaps, it is advice to youth who are beginning forays into the forest alone. But the poem speaks also to a universal human experience, a feeling of disorientation in a wilderness of sensations, impressions, desires, and demands. Before we discover our place in the world, our true nature and purpose in a living cosmos, we are truly lost. The counsel of the elders is simple: stand still in the forest, listen, then ask permission to know and be known.

The Mahatmas and Their Letters [videorecording] / Steve Schweizer. Wheaton, IL : Theosophical Society in America, c2010. 1 videodisc (36 min.)

Many of the core teachings of Theosophy are found in letters written by two Masters of Wisdom to one of the early and prominent members of the Theosophical Society, Alfred P. Sinnett. These letters are extremely significant to Theosophists for two reasons: their metaphysical and philosophical content and the extraordinary methods used in their production. This documentary explores the fascinating events surrounding these mysterious writings and examines the enduring power of their teachings on both the nature of the cosmos and the transcendent power of human consciousness. This is an update of the 1989 program of the same title and includes appearances by Ed Abdill, Joy Mills, Ianthe Hoskins, and Radha Burnier. Tim Boyd narrates.

The Relation of the Seven Principles to Atman [sound recording] / Will Ross, Ted Davy. Wheaton, IL :
Theosophical Society in America, 2010, c1980. 1 sound disc (46 min.)
Theosophy portrays the human being as being a part of nature, a microcosm in the macrocosm. Although the individual human being is a whole, for purposes of study and analysis it is convenient to look at the parts which go to make up that whole. The Secret Doctrine and the Mahatma Letters describe the human constitution as having seven principles. This discussion defines those principles and explains how they are related to the supreme spirit, or Atman.

Sacred Science [videorecording] : ancient wisdom or modern fad? / Ralph Hannon. Wheaton, IL : Theosophical Society in America, c2010. 1 videodisc (57 min.)

Sacred science and the ancient wisdom are topics frequently discussed at Theosophical venues. But is science really sacred or has it become too adored? The word quantum has been attached to so many products today we can ask: are we even talking about ancient wisdom or just another marketing ploy for a new item of consumption?
